

Bridget Lavery-Palmieri is an innovative retailer and educator with a distinguished career that spans pivotal roles at retail giants Bloomingdale's and Macy's. Currently, she is an Adjunct Assistant Professor at the Fashion Institute of Technology and LIM College, and previously at The New School, Parsons in Fashion Marketing. Bridget engages and inspires students, by navigating the intersection of education and industry, and fostering a learning environment that transcends traditional boundaries. As the founder of BLP Consulting Group, Bridget is an analytical retail strategist, who seamlessly blends consumer trend awareness with outstanding communication skills, while cultivating innovation.