

Warren Levy is a creative technologist with over 30 years' experience in corporate branding, interactive application development and physical digital activations for some of the world's most recognizable brands. For the past 20 years Warren worked as the EVP of Business Development at Show+Tell in New York, providing strategic guidance for award-winning audio, video and control solutions for global retailers, corporations, cultural institutions, real estate developers and transit systems.